

DIVISION OF POWERS

The constitution allows for law making powers to be divided between the commonwealth, states and territories, and local government.

